December 2014

And all of a sudden it was all over...

Hi:

Thank you so much for your love and loyalty over the last 25 years. Whatever success we had is due to your support. Though Black 47 has disbanded we will continue to keep www.black47.com up to date with news of the band members, while providing you with rare tracks, videos, etc. as we go along. Here's a track from the final show in BB King's. In due course we hope to have the full night available free of charge for everyone to enjoy. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KhV2_7rcu0o

The SHOP at www.black47.com will continue to operate with ALL our CDs now available. Likewise t-shirts can be obtained there along with a just added item that has long been requested - a Black 47 full zippered Hoodie - keep you warm for the winter.

We members of Black 47 are not going anywhere. We're professional musicians and we'll continue to play so come check us out in the various projects we'll undertake. Thanks for all the good times down the crazy years. There's no way we could have done it without you!

Change comes slowly like the ocean
But it keeps on coming nonetheless
Take my hand, oh dear companion
We may not find happiness
But peace and then some real contentment

And a measure of social justice
Change comes slowly like the ocean
But they can't stop the tide
And they're never ever going to stop us

I was recently compiling Rise Up, an album of political/historical songs for Black 47. Certain songs like James Connolly and Bobby Sands MP were obvious but Change, a Reggae tune, kept surfacing. It took me a moment to remember who inspired the song - not surprising since Bernadette Devlin McAliskey is rarely in the public eye anymore. And yet, what an impact she had on Irish life...
